

Valet This

23 – 1

Two rules in horse racing...1) never look a gift horse in the mouth, and 2) don't nick the door paint while you're parking the owners Maserati. If we came home at 3:00 in the morning (when we were his age) and told our parents we'd been out parking all night, it would mean....a) automatic grounding (from your mother) for 2 or maybe 3 months, b) "don't you ever bring that girl into this house" (also compliments of your mother), and c) high fives from all of your friends and your old man (and all of his friends). But if you slap a high five (ten and twenty spots are preferred) on Valet This, he'll probably think you're a tight wad which might get your doors nicked (and the universal salute). Valet This!
