

I Rest My Case

46 – 1

Here's a local bred legal eagle that really knows how to make a motion (at his age, it's a very slow motion) for the vino and pinot pro bono. And before we invoke the bartender – client privilege, just take a look at the facts attached (Exhibit 1 is pretty compelling) and you'll probably agree....the verdict is vertical because the evidence is horizontal. If convicted by a jury of his (less than sober) peers, the inebriation deliberation might turn into a celebration and invocation of the oldest rule that libation lawyers live by.....“If you're intoxicated, you're exonerated”.....just ask I Rest My Case.
